

Abstract

The invention presents a portable information processing apparatus capable of saving space, protecting the speaker, and preventing invasion of rain or dust when used outdoors, while maintaining stereo sound output of high quality. The portable information processing apparatus comprises a main body, a display unit incorporating a display panel, a rear casing of the display unit, and a speaker unit contained between the rear casing and display panel, in which the rear casing has sound release holes.